Since 2010 the State of North Rhine-Westphalia and the Mondriaanfonds Amsterdam inaugurated a new model for promoting postgraduate curatorial work by offering a programme-based grant for young German and Dutch curators.

The grant provides €1.250/month in support for each participant for a period of six months. It should support the maintenance and allows the payment of rent for one studio. A lease contract has to be signed with the Derik-Baegert-Gesellschaft for six months (starting 2nd January 2017 for Period I - 2nd July 2017 for Period II).

The curatorial grant is practice-oriented and tied in with the euregional project programme of plugin**.

The programme is located at Schloss Ringenberg, in Hamminkeln on the Lower Rhine. Schloss Ringenberg has been in operation as a studio and exhibition centre for 40 years. With six German and Dutch artist fellows per year, dialogue-focused exhibitions and cross-border knowledge exchange, along with a wealth of activities for the public, the Schloss unites under one roof in a unique exemplary fashion the whole spectrum of contemporary cultural endeavour.

Since 2001 the work of Schloss Ringenberg has centred on European projects involving German-Dutch cooperation. In conjunction with changing project partners on both sides of the border, as the well-known institutions, the Schloss has since 2005 been providing cultural producers and mediators with the means to try out unusual contemporary art concepts and formats.

Twice a year one German and one Dutch curator are invited to work as a team. Both fellows will live and work for the most part at the Schloss together during the 6-month grant period. There are two separate studios and one common office for the curators. Residence at the Schloss and participation in plugin are mandatory for grant-holders.

While guided/ moderated by the plugin-Team at Schloss Ringenberg the project offers a versatile selection of concrete fields of work as opportunity to independently put their ideas into practice. The task of two exhibitions/ projects, financed through plugin provides them with a model for the real conditions under which they will embark on their careers.

Project partners for the exhibitions/projects are: Westfälischer Kunstverein Münster | Museum Kurhaus Kleve | KIT – Kunst im Tunnel Düsseldorf | Museum Arnhem | Museum het Valkhof Nijmegen | TETEM kunstruimte Enschede

The grant serves to equip curators with professional credentials, including:

- developing their own criteria for the quality and relevance of artistic approaches - creating their own curatorial profile/aesthetic approach
- experience with institutional structures and practice-related processes such as mounting an exhibition, public relations, organisation and budgeting
- the ability to discriminate between artistic product and curatorial approach, leading to better comprehension of creative practice - supported by the unique exchanges between mediators and producers of contemporary art via artist and curatorial fellowships taking place under one roof

A Dutch-German expert jury will choose curatorial fellows in October 2016.

* The application for the Dutch curatorial grant has to be done exclusively via Mondriaanfonds Amsterdam.

** plugin is a pilot-project to improve the economic skills and situation of young visual artists and curators. The project is aiming to initiate a self-sustaining art-economy-infrastructure that consists on a synergetic exchange of artists, curators, exhibition institutions and small entrepreneurs from the creative economy sphere. Within the try-out project activities, realized in cooperation with the curatorial fellows, new models for distributing artistic products are approved. These models stay independent from the art-market and will maintain independence for artists. While plugin also could re-enact a broad fascination for art and collecting its products, the current society's appreciation of visual arts as crisis-proof currency might be superseded by alternative concepts of value, towards issues of artistic quality and desire to own art, and in contradiction to speculative capital growth or auction prices.
